about me

Anat is a self-taught artist, focusing on murals and street painting. Her professional artistic phase started in 2009, almost by mistake. Anat paints with brushes, using latex (house paint), and acrylics. In a smaller scale, Anat draws, illustrates and paints in different mediums.

Hundreds of murals under her belt in the last 6 years, she paints mostly throughout the Houston area, including public spaces like interstate highways, bridges, buildings, churches, schools, and more.

Her work is mainly seen in the vast Houston area but also can be found in Israel, Macau (China), Los Angeles, Sarasota, Kayenta (UT), Montross (VA), UK and Germany.

In addition to her mural work, Anat was the featured artist for the Houston Via Colori Street Painting Festival in 2011 and 2013. She participates in international street painting and street art festivals nationwide and around the world.
